Some "dark horse" has sent me through the mails mounted celluloid cuts of William Dean Howells and Rudyard Kipling. I can't see the joke, unless these two distinguished scribblers themselves have done it as a token of their appreciation for the advertising I have given them in this valuable column. (You know they are subscribers to all the clipping bureaus, because they are eager to know what the Herald and other literary papers of the country are saying about them.)

I shall be delighted to use Howells' cut when he has written his final story about tin wedding journeys and thrown down his goose quill forever. It will also afford me rare pleasure to run "Kip's" likeness and a brief biographical sketch just so soon as he ceases to jeer at New England pies, and the thirteen cents per word that he gets now for everything he grinds out is taken from him and divided among us inferior slaves, whose reputation depends upon what we write and not upon our name or photograph.

That was a very thoughtful murder who was hanged at Heleas, Monk, a day or two ago. He asked as a personal favor that those who followed his body to the grave should not remove their hats, as it was a barbarous custom and he wanted them protected from pneumonia. Too bad that such a sensible fellow had to go through the drop.

Montreal has had a sleeping beauty. Miss Eva Roch came back to earth last week after a nap of twenty-eight days. She would have slept a month or two longer, but they say she had a February and March, if I have to pay room rent.

Keep the labor bureau. Extend its jurisdiction. Don't take "Jule" Trask and Hosea Carter out of that office in the state house, but give 'em a little more to do.

I'm glad somebody spilled ashes along that icy place on State street hill. I've been expecting it would send a case of splintered ribs or broken neck to the Cottage hospital.

Jorkins suggests that we take a big new broom and sweep out all the rubbish in the war department, "including Alger, Eagan and Miles." I do not favor throwing Miles down, but if Jorkins has decided that it should be done, I suppose there is no escape from it. Why not replace Alger with Hoar? The Massachusetts senator would turn the army into a dancing school, give the navy to Patagonia or Peru, let Spain have New England for a colony and do other outlandish things; but, (bless his kindly heart!) he would never send us to war again, even though the Turks or Malays came stalking into New York and held a cannibal feast right in the middle of Central Park. No, indeed!

Then we might give Eagan's chair to "Rockless" Jerry Simpson. He's out of a job and, being a vegetarian, he would cut beef off the army diet entirely and thus do away with all future hair pulling over that part of the rations. For Miles' billet I would recommend Ex-Governor Busiel of our own state. To be sure, he never chased Modoc through Alkali deserts or clay pits, but he is even now battling with railroad "octopuses," and that requires more courage than undertaking to land General Shafter in a sugar barrel, high and dry on the Cuban coast by means of a derrick and a compass.

The first in the series of special evangelistic services promoted by all the Protestant pastors of the city will be held next Sunday evening at the North church. The addresses are to come from the Rev. Dr. Gile and the Rev. William Warren.

A Massachusetts man died from a week's attack of the hicoughs recently. A nurse in a Washington hospital prescribed the juice of damsons as the most pleasant and reliable cure for these exasperating bubbles in the throat. Don't know what damsons are? I believe they're grown in Egypt. I think the surest preventative of hicoughs is total abstinence from liquor.

Judge Emery of the police court was in a very accommodating mood Monday morning. John Keefe, just down from a county farm, was arraigned for drunkenness. "Do you want to go back to the farm?" asked the judge. No, John preferred a siesta at the jail. (They don't have to work on any ice ponds over there.) So the judge told John to pay a fine or go to jail. John's funds were all tied up in Wall street, and he is now puffing his briar in the brick building across lots. Fogg.

A MOST SINGULAR THING

It is a singular fact, but none the less true, that people who are sick or out of health and are taking treatment from doctors, do not know exactly what is the matter with them. One doctor says one thing and another doctor says something else. Meanwhile, they do not get well. Now, why is this? Simply that such persons have not consulted the right doctor, have not consulted a great specialist who, because he makes a specialty of the treatment and cure of chronic and lingering diseases, and because of his vast experience in treating the class of diseases like your complaint, knows just precisely what ails you from your symptoms, and more over has from his great experience the exact knowledge of what medicines your case requires to be cured. For instance, the famous Dr. Greene of 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., who stands at the head of specialists in nervous and chronic diseases, has cured thousands of cases like yours. He, therefore, will perfectly understand your disease, and if you consult him, either personally or by letter, he will tell you or write you exactly what your complaint is. Although Dr. Greene has the largest practice in this country, he gives everybody the privilege of consultation with him, free of charge, and if you will write him about your case, you will receive, without cost to you, the best medical advice and counsel about your complaint, which advice, if followed, will lead to your cure. Dr. Greene's system of treatment by harmless vegetable medicines is the wonder of medical science. One of his grand discoveries, Dr. Greene's Nervous blood and nerve remedy, is known and used all over the world, and he has equally marvellous remedies for various complaints. You want to know what your trouble is, why not write to the Doctor and find out.

McDOODLE'S FLATS.

That Rice and Barton have been enormously successful is a household word and the passing seasons but add to their reputation and riches. The present offering embraces upwards of some twenty-five artists, and the programme consists of comedy and high class vaudeville. There are a number of clever vaudeville artists with the company, among whom are J. K. Mullen, the versatile Irish comedian, Berry and Hughes, musical eccentrics, John C. Leach, Chinese impersonator, Little and Pritzlow, operatic vocalists, Morrell and Evans, singers of soon melodies, Annie Dunn, soubrette, May Cook and Nellie Hamilton, in popular songs, Grace Warren, Pauline Sylvester, and a dozen pretty girls in a conglomeration of mirth, music, and melody. At Music hall, Wednesday evening, Feb. 1st.

RACING AT DOVER

The horsemen were out with their flyers on the Cocheo river speedway yesterday afternoon, and several lively brushes took place. Nat Howe easily won the honors over Ruby B., driven by Eugene McCue of Portsmouth. During the racing the fence of 1st street, which was crowded with spectators, broke down, and Arthur Willey of Union street was severely injured. He was carried to his home in a carriage, where a physician attended him. Several others received slight injuries. —Dover paper.

AN ENDLESS CHAIN.

Several letters have been received in town asking that an endless chain be formed, the proceeds of which will go towards the erection of a monument in memoriam of the soldiers of the First New Hampshire who died while members of the regiment. Capt. Julius Stinson of Claremont is the originator of the movement.

WANT $50,000

Would Contract and Equip Railroad at Portsmouth Navy Yard

Spacial to the Herald.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—An effect is being made by the members of the New Hampshire delegation to incorporate in the navy appropriation an item providing for the construction and equipment of a railroad in the navy yard at Portsmouth, to meet a connection with the Boston and Maine railroad at Kittery, Me. The sum of $50,000 is asked for.

BASE BALL NEWS.

Walter Woods is not enthusiastic over the idea of being transferred to Louisville, but he will probably accept the inevitable and go to Breweryville. Walter experienced some rather tough luck with the Chicagoes last year. He holds the record of pitching more extra-inning games, by non support, than has any other pitcher.

Jennings of the Baltimore says that Rosie is by far the speediest pitcher in the profession.

Jack Leighton writes denying the report of his death. He states that he is enjoying the best of health and that he will again be in the game this year.

It is the intention of Hanlon to keep George Magoon in Brooklyn as a utility infielder. Miller the other Portland boy, will be shifted to Baltimore as one of the corps of pitchers of that club.

The Bowdoin college management wants Tenney of the Boston to train the candidates for the nine. No better man than the star first baseman of the champions could be secured.

Fred Klobedanz, one of Portland's former twirlers, is employed at the Park theatre in Boston. He will be with the Hub team again this season.

A number of new novelties will be introduced in the reproduction of the P. C. C. Minstrel Show Friday evening, Feb. 3d.

General Lee's Magnanimity.

The following anecdote of General Robert E. Lee is characteristic of the magnanimous greatness of the Virginia chieftain. At a faculty meeting of the Washington and Lee university during Lee's presidency one of the professors made some disparaging remarks about General Grant. General Lee, in indignation, rose from his chair and, looking the professor full in the face, said to him: "Sir, if you ever presume to speak disrespectfully of General Grant in my presence, either you or I will sever connection with this university."

Sunflower Pith.

The pith of the sunflower stem is said to be the lightest substance known. Its specific gravity is 0.028, as compared with 0.09 for elder pith, hitherto recognized as the lighter material, and 0.1 for reindeer hair, and 0.24 for cork. As a flower is extensively cultivated in Russia, mainly for its seeds. But the discovery of the extreme lightness of its pith has added to its commercial value. For life-saving appliances at sea cork has a buoyancy of 1 to 5 and reindeer hair 1 to 10, while sunflower pith has a buoyancy of 1 to 35.

A Military Precaution.

It is a pretty well known fact that most of the deaths that occur on the field of battle result from bleeding to death before surgical aid arrives. The French Government has under consideration a scheme for tattooing the soldiers of the French army with a certain mark over each artery, so that a wounded man would be able to staunch the flow of blood himself, and thus increase his chances of living.

Another large crowd enjoyed the excellent skating at the Point yesterday afternoon and evening and the electric cars were well patronized. A skating carnival is being talked up. Such a thing would be a great novelty and attract a large crowd.

YORK.

Special Correspondence.

YORK, Jan. 30.

Mr. Haynes, principal of the High school, assisted by the pupils gave interesting rhetorical exercises at the school house Friday afternoon in the presence of invited guests and friends. An entertainment was given and each part was rendered in a creditable manner. Mr. Allen's address was very instructive. The music was pleasingly rendered, and the school paper contained essays, and local hits and jokes.

A visit was then paid to the Primary school, Miss O'Brien of Gloucester has charge of this department and doing good work here.

The Grammar and Intermediate departments are taught by Gilman Moulton and Miss White and the schools were never under better management than at the present time.

Mrs. J. Howard Jenkins accompanied by her sister Mrs. Littlehale spent Friday in Boston.

Mrs. H. Donnell celebrated her 87th anniversary of her birth Friday. W. Donnell of Groveland, Mass., Mrs. Bartlett of Everett, Mass., were present and letters were received from sons and daughters. She had many callers all day. In spite of her advanced age she is active and vigorous and on this day cooked and prepared the dinner.

Several from her attended the P. C. C. minstrel overture and dance and felt more than paid.

YORK, Jan. 30.

The 18th anniversary of the birth of Christian Endeavor was fittingly observed at the Congregational vestry Saturday evening. Owing to illness among the officers and members of the society many were unable to be present and the program was somewhat modified. Mrs. Leslie Haynes spoke upon "Christian Endeavor at Goodwill Farm." Mrs. Haynes is a former manager of the farm, a home for boys, located at East Fairfield, Me., and as he expressed it "Having seen the work from the inside" he was thoroughly familiar with his subject and gave an interesting talk. A duet, "Whispering Hope" by Mr. and Mrs. Fellows, and a piano solo, "Hallelujah," by Miss Katherine Marshall completed the program.

Mrs. Weave of Cape Neckdock, who has been visiting her daughter Mrs. Charles Bragdon, returned to her home this morning.

There is more Catarrh in this country than all other diseases put together, and the last year was supposed to be increasing. For a great many years doctors have announced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly falling to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only cure known to the world. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a spoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the whole system. They offer one bottle free, and if you are not cured, send for another. Write for it. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Sole Proprietors, 209 N. 3rd St., St. Louis, Mo.

As a candidate, Mr. Quay appears to be in the hands of his enemies.

The Kaiser is 40 years old. Who would think it, watching his antics?
Gen. Egan is discovering the relative value of the blue pencil and the sword.
Gen. Corcoran declares that Spain has too many generals. Possibly the quality, rather than the quantity, of the article requires looking after.
Are you an autograph fiend, and would you like Grover Cleveland's signature? You can get it easily. Just write him that you are getting up an anti-expansion meeting. He'll reply with a thousand words.
A Kansas City clergyman declares that the devil has captured the city, and is in full possession. What has the reverend brother and his colleagues been doing all this time to let the enemy get such a foot-hold?

The road to Col. Robert G. Ingersoll's theological convictions evidently lies through his pocketbook. Not until an agent decamped with the box office receipts of his lecture did he discover that there ought to be a place of future punishment for the wicked.
The fact that the aldermen finished the hearings on the electric railroad questions on Monday evening, will allow the contractors to push the road to rapid completion. The citizens seriously object to delaying the work on the road and the action of the aldermen was in accordance with the wishes of the people.

Among the most amusing of the performances by the opponents in Washington of treaty ratification, is their persistent allusion to the Filipinos as "our allies" at Manila previous to the fall of the capital. Of course, no one has yet forgotten the fine tact with which both Dewey and Merritt avoided every act that might favor of an alliance or understanding with the insurgents.

It was demonstrated on Saturday in the purchase of material for the city that local merchants can compete favorably with outsiders, and that the city can save many dollars. The awarding of the contract to John H. Broughton to furnish the lumber to rebuild the Sagamore bridge, was in competition with outside firms, and Mr. Broughton was the lowest. A generous amount of such treatment in city affairs would be welcomed by the tax payers.

"THE MYSTERY OF THE CLOOMBER."

The Herald will present, on Saturday evening next, the opening installment of another serial story, which will prove very entertaining to all those of our readers who like a clever plot served up in crisp, stirring English. The title is, "The Mystery of the Cloomber," and the author is A. Conan Doyle, that master of fiction whose popularity was so firmly established by "A Study in Scarlet" and other stories in the "Sherlock Holmes" series.
Mr. Doyle is unapproached in detective stories and tales of mystery. This new series is vigorous and keen as anything he has ever written. His stories are selling by the thousand. The Herald takes pleasure in giving its readers so delightful a production from the leading author.

THE PRESIDENT'S CORRESPONDENCE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The president transmitted to the senate today his correspondence with the peace commissioners at Paris. The principal item from the correspondence was the president's instructions on the occasion of the island of Luzon. After that decision was taken, it was decided to take the entire group of islands. This later decision was the result of developments. It appeared to be a suggestion made by the commissioners to the president. In regard to the cession of the island of Luzon the president said there was but one alternative, and that was to either take the island or return it to Spain. Of the two courses he preferred the former. The president does not appear at any time to have given implicit instructions to the commissioners to insist on the cession of all the Philippines, but left it to the discretion of the commissioners. The American commissioners appear to have been of one mind in taking all of the islands with the exception of Senator Gray, who, although he signed the treaty, held out to the last against this policy. The senate will not print the correspondence.

MAY GO TO SAMOA AND MAY NOT.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The government has not cancelled the order to the U. S. S. Philadelphia to proceed to Samoa. Germany has one vessel and Great Britain has two at Apia and the presence of an American warship there would not cause any uneasiness. The Philadelphia was expected to leave San Diego yesterday, but was detained by the non-appearance of Chief Engineer Bates, ordered there from the Texas at Havana. Admiral Kautz stated yesterday that unless orders came changing the present plans the Philadelphia would not sail before Friday or Saturday. It was uncertain whether the flagship would go there at all.

PLENTY OF AMMUNITION.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Secretary Long has replied to former Minister Woodford's statement that when the war broke out there were not two rounds of ammunition for the guns in the navy. Secretary Long shows that all the vessels in the navy were abundantly supplied with ammunition before the Maine was blown up. So far as relates to Admiral Dewey's squadron, the ammunition of the fleet was never reduced below the amount prescribed by the department. The vessels engaged expended only one-third of the allowance.

STILL WRANGLING OVER THE PEACE TREATY.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The senate held a long executive session today on the peace treaty. Senator Jones of Arkansas led the opponents of the treaty and Senator Carter of Montana supported it.

HAS MONEY TO BURN.

HARTFORD, CONN., Jan. 30.—Col. Albert A. Pope sent a telegram to General Miles today asking him to draw on him for $1000 to prove that chemicals were used in embalming beef.

IT WILL BE WARMER AT MANILA.

St. Paul, Jan. 30.—The Third regiment of United States infantry left today for the Philippines by the way of New York. The thermometer registered twenty-six degrees below zero when the regiment marched out of Fort Snelling.

TO BE PROMOTED BY BREVET.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The board which for some time has been revising the list of army officers to be promoted by brevet, has completed that portion of the work including the Santiago campaign. The list sent to the senate today included 500 or 600 names.

THEY WORKED HARD.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The house put in a hard day's work on the army bill today. Amendments giving the president discretionary power to reduce the size of infantry companies and cavalry troops to sixty men were adopted.

THE GRIP.

Leaves Its Victims Debilitated and Weak.

The Quick Recovery of Strength and Appetite is Important.

Vinol is a Wonderful Tonic Rebuilder,

And of Great Value During Convalescence.

It Will Tone You Up, So That Danger of Pneumonia Will Be Lessened.

If You Take Vinol in Such Cases, and It Does Not Help You, All the Money You Have Paid Out Will Be Returned to You.

The Grip is again prevalent. There is no disease known to science that more quickly reduces the patient's strength than this same mysterious grip. Every organ of the body is quickly incapacitated. Great lassitude ensues. The suffering from this extreme debility is most distressing. Worst of all, the system is in a condition where it is ready to receive the germs of any other disease. Pneumonia is the most to be feared malady, and when it makes its appearance after the grip, the results are almost always disastrous.

We know that Vinol, Wine of Cod Liver Oil, as a tonic, will not only maintain the strength of the sufferer during the attack of the grip, so that it will pass off much more quickly, but it will hasten recovery and prevent danger of future troubles.

Mrs. John Gorman, of 143 Franklin st., Meriden, Conn., says: "The grip left my little boy, Arthur, in a very much weakened condition. We tried old fashioned cod liver oil. It made him sick, and upset his stomach. We then gave him Vinol. I only wish everyone who has suffered from the grip could see him since he has been taking Vinol."

Come and see us, and we will prove to you in a minute that Vinol is most delicious to the taste. You will be running no risk in buying of us, for if it does not satisfy you in every particular, we will refund you your money.

ANDREW P. PRESTON.

Assistant paymaster general, to be paymaster general, with the rank of brigadier general.

WARSHIPS FOR PORTO RICO.

St. Thomas, V. I., Jan. 30.—The Annapolis and Vicksburg arrived here on Saturday and will sail for Porto Rico on Wednesday.

WILL BEGIN APRIL 15th.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The National base ball league games will begin April 15th and continue until the middle of October. 154 games will be played.

SENATOR QUARLES TO BE.

MADISON, WIS., Jan. 30.—Joseph B. Quarles was renominated by acclamation for United States senator by the republican caucus tonight.

LIFE'S LABOR ENDED.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 30.—Rev. A. M. Freeman died at Wolfeboro Falls today. He was for fifteen years pastor of the Free Baptist church in this city.

HELD IN THE SUM OF $2000.

LAKEPORT, N. H., Jan. 30.—In police court today, Charles Aldrich was held in the sum of $2000 for assault with intent to kill Noah Lorock on Jan. 23d.

Spain's Greatest Need

Mr. R. P. Oliver, of Barcelona, Spain, sends his winter at Aiken, S. C. Weak nerves had caused severe pains in the back of the head. On using Electric Bitters, America's greatest Blood and Nerve remedy, all pains soon left him. He says this grand medicine is what his country needs. All America knows that it cures liver and kidney trouble, purifies the blood, tones up the stomach, strengthens the nerves, puts vim, vigor and new life into every muscle, nerve and organ of the body. FOO CHOW THREATENED.

Chinese Rebels Claim Very Near Capturing the Great Oriental City.

Yacoma, Wash., Jan. 30.—The steamship Lenox brings news that the Chinese rebels came very near capturing the city of Foo Chow, having nearly a million population. The conspirators were members of Kuo-lao-Hui, a famous secret society, having for its object the extermination of foreigners. They won a large number of native troops over to their side, and planned to seize Foo Chow, kill the mandarins and hoist the flag of the rebellion. Two days before the date set for the massacre, the plot was exposed by one of the conspirators, a recruit from outside.

An investigation showed that the secret society leaders had 500 armed men hidden in Foo Chow ready to seize and pillage when the signal was given. Nearly half of the native troops composing the Foo Chow garrison were found to belong to Kuo-lao-Hui, whose orders they have sworn to obey. Thirty conspirators were arrested, and the balance managed to escape.

The mandarins do not dare to arrest the society members in the garrison for fear of forcing the situation. The city is being policed by the viceroy's body guard, and loyal troops from other cities are being hurried there. Japan's government in Formosa is unsuccessful, with the result that the Formosan rebellion is still spreading. Commercial operations throughout the island are practically stopped. Many Japanese papers allege official corruption in the affairs of Formosa, and the government recently dispatched a European adviser to Formosa to investigate. One chief difficulty is found to be that the natives in Japan do not fit conditions in Formosa, and the natives are constantly rebelling against them.

REPORT AGAINST EWART.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The senate committee on judiciary today made an adverse report on the nomination of Hamilton G. Ewart to be United States district judge for the western district of North Carolina. Judge Ewart was appointed during the recess and now holds the position. An effort will be made in the senate to have Ewart confirmed notwithstanding the adverse report.

MRS. STANFORD'S WILL.

San Francisco, Jan. 30.—A review of the work of Mrs. Jane L. Stanford as executrix of the estate of the late Leland Stanford shows that she handled property valued at $24,800,232. The fees and percentages to which she was legally entitled amounted to $357,768, but she waived all claim for her services. She paid her attorneys $60,000 for their services and allowed them $7000 for expenses.

DOWNED AT GREAT POND.

South Weymouth, Jan. 30.—Abner Hunt was drowned in the Weymouth Great Pond here this morning. Hunt was 70 years of age and lived in a hut on the shore of the pond. He was employed in ice cutting. He started for his work early this morning and walked across the ice until he came to a thin spot, which gave way under his weight. His body has not been recovered.

REV. MYRON REED DEAD.

Denver, Jan. 30.—Rev. Myron Winslow Reed, pastor of the Broadway Temple, and at different times pastor of the Olivett Congregational church, Milwaukee, the First Presbyterian church of Indianapolis and other churches in the east and south, died at St. Joseph's hospital in this city today, after a protracted illness, due to a general breakdown of the system. Mr. Reed was stricken with nervous prostration, which developed into insomnia. His sleeplessness baffled the skill of the best physicians in the city until hypnotic power was resorted to. This had the effect of quieting his nervousness and brought sleep to the exhausted man. Mr. Reed improved perceptibly for several days until a relapse came, which left him beyond hope of relief. He was unconscious at the end and death came without pain. He was born in Brookfield, Vt., July 24, 1836. His father was a minister.

THE EAGAN VERDICT.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The record of the court martial in the case of Commissioner General Eagan was placed in the hands of Judge Advocate General Lieber today for review. Secretary Alger discussed the matter with the president yesterday, and the papers came to the judge advocate general through the usual routine channels. General Lieber could not say today how long it will take him to complete the review. When he concluded with the papers as well as the testimony along to the adjutant general, Colonel Weston, who has been designated to act as commissary general, is reported to be still living in New York, and the reports do not indicate when he may be expected here to assume the duties of the office.

FILLED WITH WATER.

Hight and Light, Mass., Jan. 30.—The schooner Cathie C. Perry, which went ashore recently at Vineyard Haven and high water came in around Cape Cod last night, became water-logged and sank. Hight bars about midnight, and the schooner, which had her crew in tow, was obliged to abandon her after taking shelter on the bars later, where she now lies filled with water. The Cathie C. Perry is of 215 gross tons, 142 feet long, and was built at Thomaston, Me., in 1873. She came from Thomaston, Me.

TAKEN INTO CUSTODY.

Officers Robinson and Shannon arrested William Powell on Church street at about midnight on Monday, and a few minutes later repeated the same performance on James H. Clobecy on Market square. Both were under the influence of liquor and had been engaged in an attempt to break and enter the Globe Grocery Co.'s store. They had broken out a pane of glass in the rear door of the store in an effort to enter, but the noise attracted the attention of the officers with the above result. One of Powell's hands was covered with blood where it had been cut by broken glass. Both will appear before police court this morning and answer to the charge of breaking and entering.

AN ABDUCTED BRIDE.

TWO YEARS OF HORROR ENDURED IN A WILD WILDERNESS.

Rescued accidentally by a Guide While Lodging Game Preserves—Her Appearance Was Most Marvellous—Terrible Retribution Soon Overtaken the Abductor.

Jealous rage, caused by rejected love, possession gained unlawfully and violently, sufferings too horrible for contemplation due to the brutality of her fendish abductor and a retribution more terrible than any ever meted out by the savage Apaches to a captured enemy, are the elements which go to make up the pitiful story of Rosie Pelletier, the abducted bride of Elie Sirola, of Lambert Lake.

Two years of horror in the wild wilderness of Washington county woods passed before any trace of the missing woman was found. Then followed the swift retribution and the succeeding months of agony with the brute who caused all the woe, the groveling idiot who believes himself to be a hog. This is the story told by Joe Lacoot, the famed Passamaquoddy scout and trapper.

Rosie Pelletier two years ago was a joyous bride. She loved and was beloved by Elie Sirola. She was also beloved by Peter Bubeer, a French-Canadian. Peter pressed his suit with ardor, but in vain. He swore to kill the girl and that none other should possess her. The ceremony took place in the morning. There was a dance in the evening. When the wedding party was at its height Peter Bubeer burst into the astonished assembly, fired his shotgun into the ceiling, shot the groom through the arm, and under cover of the confusion and smoke carried away the bride. Out into the dark night, into the wild woods he ran, preventing his victim from making any sound, although she could hear the frantic calls of husband and friend. From that moment to the present those friends have ever laid eyes on her. For over a year the dis-traced husband sought her in the wilderness, but without avail.

Lacoot had been employed by some New York men to locate a game preserve for them. He started for the wilds of the north and on the second week struck Lake Syslodobis. He undertook to cut across to Lake Sopanica, so he took to the woods. As he was pushing along about 3 o'clock one afternoon he arrived at a small pond.
As he broke out into a clearer space he suddenly espied what to his amusement proved to be large hogs. They were not like the fat, round domestic porker, but were rangy, gaunt and thin.

But among them as they grubbed and rooted in the undergrowth, moved an animal that startled the old hunter.
Lacoot crept nearer. He squinted through the bushes. The remarkable animal was certainly a man—but such a man! The only semblance of clothing was a wadding of cloth that was spread over his back, evidently for protection in some slight degree against the sun and the rain. This man was on his hands and knees and was poking around in the soil after food, as it seemed. Every few moments he would scoop out with his hands a string of the wild potato, or ground nuts, and then would sit back on his thighs and munch them down.
Then he would again fall to digging and to elbowing the hogs that were filled to crowd in where he was at work.

But there was another surprise.
A quarter of a mile further on he came into a bit of a clearing. In the center of it was a little shack, built of birch bark and saplings and thatched deeply with spruce boughs. As Lacoot approached it a person rushed out, and with a shrill yell, evidently of terror, went running for the woods.
The Indian, seeing the long hair floating behind, and perceiving that despite the ragged and almost unde-cipherable attire that the garb once had been a woman's dress, decided that the fugitive was feminine. He hallooed for her to stop.

Then Lacoot entered into a parley with her and explained that he meditated no harm to any one, but was merely going through the woods on business. The woman surveyed him with increasing interest, and at last asked him who he was and where he came from.

"I'm Joe Lacoot, or Minisewah in Indian," shouted the hunter, "and I live at Lambert Lake."

Almost as soon as he had spoken the woman uttered another shrill cry, and started on the run toward the astonished Indian and cried between her sobs:

"Are you really and truly Joe Lacoot?
Are you Joe Lacoot of Lambert Lake? Don't you know me?"

Lacoot looked at the miserable woman, at her rags and at her face, brown with exposure, and at her figure, bony and scrawny. In this poor, half-starved creature, he could recognize no one he had ever seen before.

"Don't you know me at all?" she cried again. "Why, I'm Rosie Peltier; I'm really Rosie Pelletier."

Lacoot could scarcely believe the evidence of his ears and his eyes.

"Rosie Pelletier?" he repeated.

"Rosie Sirola?" he added.

"Don't call me that!" she cried.
"Ellie won't ever want to see me again.
He won't ever want to call me his wife."

After some soothing and persuasion she grew calmer and brokenly told her story.

"Did you see anything when you were coming through the woods?" she asked, shuddering.

"I saw some hogs and—and—" a great light breaking in on him—"I saw —why, Rosie, it can't—"

"That's him," she broke in, "that thing is Peter Bubeer, and I think God has sent it on him. But, oh, why has God punished me no?" and again the poor woman fell to weeping.

"Yes, Joe, that's Peter Bubeer," she went on, "and he's been like that more than a year and a half. I tried and tried to get away from here. I'm a wicked woman for making him that way, but I couldn't help it—I struck him with an ax, and he's been like that. It has been terrible, Joe, and how it is that I'm alive I don't know."

Then the poor creature told Lacoot of the fearful trip in the woods after the abduction. Bubeer tied her to trees when he slept. Once he left her for hours and returned with sacks containing flour and four young pigs, stolen from a camper. Bubeer coolly informed her, she said, that he proposed to take up his home in the woods permanently and keep her there with him. Therefore the pigs were to be kept alive and reared. Had not the woman been a strong and healthy French-Canadian girl, accustomed to hard work and woods life, she never could have endured the journey. But when she refused to go further Bubeer beat her until she rose and staggered on.

A half dozen times he pitched upon some place that seemed to him a secure retreat. Before he had cut the logs for the last camp the trouble came. From time to time the woman, driven wild by the acts of her captor, on whom appeals had no effect whatever, sought to escape in the woods.

One day she fled into the woods after an especially horrible experience with her brutal jailer. He had allowed her to go nearly a mile into the forest. Then he tracked her closely and brought her back to the camp.
When he pushed her into the little shack and again fell to harassing her she became infuriated beyond all endurance. As Bubeer came toward her, off his guard because she had so often resisted him in vain, she darted past him, seized the ax standing in the corner and dealt the ruffian a blow on the head ere he could turn and face her. He fell, and she thought she had killed him.

But the Frenchman's tough skull withstood the whack. He lived and the repentant woman brought him such food as she was able to secure.
But when, after he had lain in the hut for several weeks, he was at last able to crawl out of doors he was an idiot.
His singular crochets was that he was a pig. He walked on all fours, and he daily went rubbing in the forest with the hogs that he had stolen from the squatter's sty.

The girl could have left the place at any time, but she was sufficiently acquainted with woods life to understand that venturing out into that trackless forest was only a shade less rash than suicide. So she stayed on and on at the camp, hoping that at last some hunter or lumberman would come along that way. She knew how to make and set traps, and she was able to exist after a fashion on rabbits and small game, and on several occasions she took Bubeer's rifle and shot deer.

The presence of the hogs at the camp saved her for the animals had multiplied, and she from time to time killed one. She did this, however, only when pressed to it by the extremity of hunger, for the idiot went into a fury when any assault was made on the inmates of the sty.

After Lacoot had listened to the story he fitted the woman out with a pair of moccasins and helped to make a rude skirt out of the blanket he carried. Then the two, without waiting to interview the idiot, started away through the woods. A long trip on foot for a person in her condition was not to be thought of. So Lacoot took her to the hunting camp of Henry West on Saponic stream. He left her west to rest and to recover in some degree from her bitter experience in the forest. Then Lacoot posted away to carry the startling news to Lambert lake.

The officers of the nearest township removed Peter Bubeer to the insane asylum. The hogs will be shot, and the camp where the poor bride passed so many hours of bitter anguish will be burned.

Cause of Storm.

"Nearly every storm in this latitude," says Professor Sonn, the meteorological expert of Newark, N. J., "is cyclonic in character, not in the generally accepted sense of tempestuous, but as revolving. Nine out of every ten storms that blow down upon us, he says, begin in the Northeast, and move, in order, to the east, the southeast, and finally, the southwest. They make a revolution, and the storm is spent when it reaches the northwest.
In the Southern Hemisphere the order is reversed. The storm begins in the southwest and changes in turn to the west, the northwest and the southeast.
This last is the final stage. This revolution is caused by the way in which storms are generated. A certain spot becomes overheated, the hot air rises and creates a vacuum, and then from every point of the compass the cooler air rushes in to fill the vacuum, and owing to the earth's motion these air currents are given a slightly revolving impulse. The result is a cyclone.
A hurricane is different. This is a tempest, in which the wind blows in one direction. The cyclone is of greater or less degree of force; the hurricane is always violent.

Don't Stoop When You Read.

The habit of stooping over when reading or writing has a bad effect on most eyes and should be avoided especially if one is near sighted. When people approach the age of 40 the morning paper is apt to appear blurred, and they complain the printing is getting bad. The trouble is they need glasses. If they do not get them, later on their eyes will deteriorate so rapidly they will be obliged to wear them all the time. On the other hand, if a person puts on glasses when the first warning of "near eyes" is received he will never be obliged to wear them the rest of his life except when doing fine work.

Sterilizing Copenhagen.

In Copenhagen the dairy companies work on a large scale. At one place the milk is pasteurized by passing through 800 feet of tubing heated to 88 degrees, and cooled down by ice at the end, so it is thoroughly sterilized. In another place where they handle 50,000 pints a day, every drop is filtered through sterilized gravel, and some of it is sterilized separately after that.

Fighting a Dead Man.

Among the persons summoned at the Highgate (London) Police Court for breach of the muzzling order was a man, who, on being called, did not appear. It was stated that he had once died. The Bench, however, imposed the usual fine of 10s. and costs.

WIVES OF CHINAMEN.

DEPLORABLE INTERMARRIAGES OF WHITE GIRLS AND MONGOLIANS.

Sociological students in San Francisco and elsewhere are face to face with a grave problem—The Terrible Fate Endured by Contending Women.

Nowhere in the world is there such a striking commingling of diametrically opposite races as there exists today in the Chinese quarter of San Francisco, writes Lucie F. Pierce.
Nowhere has the Mongolian race so persistently intermarried with nationalities of the white race. Nowhere have white women who venture to enter into such a contract so lost their caste, their station in society, and become such wretched outcasts, without a friendly, use of either clan or country, as they have within the limits of the California city.

Marriage between whites and Chinese is increasing to an astonishing extent. Nearly one hundred cases are now known to exist. This is not large, of course, in comparison with the number of Chinese in the city.
Indeed, that number is small. But its significance is terrifying. In that lies the problem.

Contemplate for a moment what a white woman surrenders when she marries a Chinaman. First of all, she must abandon all association with her relatives. She is forced to this on account of the wide breach which exists between the races. She not only must cast aside all filial ties, but she must sever forever all connection with the whole white race. When she abandons her race she abandons her caste. And when she loses her caste she loses her country. She becomes a social outcast. She has lowered herself from the ranks of a progressive, cultured race to those of a vile, un-cleanly, semi-civilized horde, weakmentally and morally. She has lost all that would make a patriotic woman, loyal to whatever national flag, thrill with the deepest feeling.

And the gain? Why, there is no gain. It is all loss. She secures a husband but she loses pride. She secures a miserable home, and she loses forever what a woman holds most dear, her name.

At any moment we may expect to see her celestial husband wind his pig-tail around his yellow, shaven head, and depart for China, leaving her without means of support, cast upon the world, a despised and ignored creature. At any time, living in the midst of disease-breeding filth, the husband may be carried off by death.
He may leave some landed property or the merchandise of a shop, or a few bags of gold coin. Naturally one would think that she who had surrendered everything that is precious and noble in life for her Chinese husband would reap the benefit of all this and receive the heritage due her. Not so.
No white woman ever inherited a dollar of a Chinaman's wealth. It goes to the beloved uncles and parents and brothers and sisters in the big flowery kingdom over the water, and the white woman is left to starve.

Hated and spurned in America, she may seek the shores of her husband's country and throw herself upon the mercy and leniency of his family there.
She, who had once been superior to them in intellect, in form, in beauty, in morality, in instinct, receives not even the respect of equal to equal.

There have been cases where white women have married Christianized Mongolians. Marriage in this case is sacred, binding, legal. There have been a few such that have turned out happily.

Strange as it may seem, a majority of the women who marry Chinese have sprung from Scandinavian, German or Russian parentage. It seems that the yellow hair and the blue eyes of the buxom northern beauty appeal particularly to the Mongolian race. The rosy complexion and graceful white woman astonishes and attracts them. No Chinaman will marry a woman of his own race if he can prevail upon a white woman to accept marriage.

If the Chinaman will consent to become a Christian and give up some of the marital privileges of his native land, they are looked upon as respectable members of the community. The woman really gains nothing by this; neither does she lose. She is taking chances neither way. And the Chinese husband and father rises somewhat in the nature of his instincts, one step in the ladder of advancement.

But this has not been the happy outcome of all the intermarriages which have taken place. Only a rare few have consented to accept Christianity.
And white women persist in throwing themselves away on these pagan in-grates. Mission workers plead with them and still they persist in entering into unions that end eventually in utter degradation and social degeneracy. If they are not strong enough to resist the attentions of a pagan celestial they are not strong enough to withstand his awful vices. Let them step out into the by-way of a pagan marriage and they have chosen the road to everlasting social damnation.
The end is generally violent death.

Sight of Birds.

The organ of sight is more highly developed in birds than in any other animal. Naturalists declare that the kestrel is possessed of such wonderful powers of sight that it is able to see a mouse when it is itself at such a height in the air that it is invisible to the naked human eye.

French Rabbit Industry.

England has three guinea pig farms one of which exports 150,000 yearly to France, where they are used at restaurants as rabbits, the flavor of the flesh being identical in the two animals.
The industry is said to be very profitable.

Queen Victoria's Cause.

The black ebony walking stick most often used by Queen Victoria belonged to Charles I.

Rome's Cemetery.

The most extensive cemetery in the world is that at Rome, in which over 6,000,000 human beings have been interred.

A UNIQUE STATUE.

Berlin Erects a Monument to Her Father Washerwoman.

Let washerwomen take the heart of grace and beauty to more their humble calling. In Berlin they have been honored by a monument, as soldiers and sailors are in loyal towns here.
In one of the public squares is the statue. The base represents a flight of

STATUE OF WASHWOMAN.

stairs up which the woman is supposed to have gone in order to wash at the brook, which is held between dams.
A pleasing female figure, well poised, is shown wringing out linen which she has just washed, and the water supply of the fountain comes from the supposed piece of linen. The water first drops into a basin representing a large shell, and through indentures falls to the larger basin beneath.

The sculptor, Ludwig Brunow, made his reputation principally in quite a different sphere. His first beginnings were wood carvings and only comparatively late he began to work in stone and bronze. In 1873 he made his first large monument, that of Moltke in Parchim, and since then he has completed a number of important works, almost all of them princes or former monarchs of Prussia and other domains. The fountain, which has just found a permanent place, had received a gold medal at the art exposition in Berlin.

"Beyond the Pale."

"A. Swindle" is the name that appears over the office door of a struggling lawyer in a city of Canada. A friend of the unfortunate gentleman suggested the advisability of writing out his first name in full, thinking that Arthur or Andrew Swindle, as the case might be, would sound better and look better than the significant "A. Swindle." When the lawyer, with tears in his eyes, whispered to him that his name was Adam the friend understood and was silent.—Kansas Guano, the World's Wheat King.

The wheat king of the world belongs to Argentina. He is an Italian emigrant named Guano, and his broad acres are situated in the south of the province of Buenos Ayres. His crop occupies an area of 66,270 acres. He numbers his workmen by the thousand, and each one receives a certain share of the profits. When his season's crop is harvested he fills over 3,000 railway trucks with grain.

Strange Religious Services.

A queer polyglot religious service was held at the Seaman's Bethel at Douglas on the Isle of Man. The gospel was read in Gaelic, a hymn sung in Manx, prayer offered in Welsh and the sermon delivered in English. On the previous Sunday the Lord's Prayer was said in Cornish, a language the last speaker of which died in the early years of this century.

The Malignant Oyster.

A medical magazine lately denounced the oyster as unfit for human food, filled with bacteria, gorged with typhoid bacilli, and a constant menace to human life. We are sorry so much that is wicked has been discovered about the oyster, but we will remain its friend, in spite of bacteria, bacilli, and impending death.—Louisville, Ky.,

Eels' Eggs Wanted.

Here's a chance for some one. No as they never increase in a land-locked pond. Fame and distinction await the one who will solve this problem that one has ever seen eels' eggs. It is believed that they spawn in the ocean, the naturalists have found too much for them.

The Growth of Insurance.

From a board of trade blue book just issued, it appears that British life assurance offices own funds amounting to $1,250,000,000, and that the insurances effected with them amount to about $3,500,000,000, or considerably more than the total of the national debt.

Frog Skin for Gloves.

The latest in the realm of glove-making is gloves of frog skin. This skin is said to be the finest and toughest leather in the world. The demand for them is not great, but of sufficient dimensions to make it worth while to manufacture.

BUILDING A FORTUNE.

ROMANTIC FOUNDING OF THE GREAT GOELET ESTATE.

The Death of Ogden Goelet, One of New York's Multi-Millionaires Recalls the Career of His Shrewd Huguenot Ancestor—Enormous Landed Interests.

The death in Europe, of Ogden Goelet, while it will not separate the vast estate which came to him in part through his uncle Peter, nevertheless may divide in two parts what has been an individual holding valued at between $35,000,000 and $45,000,000.

Next to the two Astor estates it was the greatest in proportion of the real estate holdings in New York city. Its building up was as a romance. Somewhat like the Astor interests, the heads of the various generations of the family held on to their real estate and added to its extent. But, unlike the Astor, until very recently the Goelet estate has adopted the principle of constant improvement, and the result is that its buildings are now notable because as a rule they represent the best types of modern buildings.

Romance in wealth, as invested in land and houses, is by no means unfamiliar to New York. But the foundation of the vast property which came together under Peter Goelet was established under peculiarly romantic circumstances. The history of the Edict of Nantes is one of the most interesting episodes in the chronicles of France. The sturdy, God-fearing, trading Huguenots, driven to desperation by the decree of Louis, made all sorts of efforts to escape from what they then deemed their cursed country.

Among the thousands of families was that of the Goeleets, who were stopped at the borders of the low countries and sent back. Only one member of it, Jean, escaped the French officials, and he came to this country in 1685. He was welcomed to New York almost as a hero. He was personally attractive, of admirable address, and excellent education. He knew English and soon made himself something of a social factor in the little colony.

He fell in love with, and married the daughter of John Cannon, a merchant, in 1697, and with her came a considerable fortune. It was the turning of the tide for the young Frenchman. Accepted as a partner by his father-in-law, he finally became one of the well known merchants of the colony. The children resulting from the marriage were thirty and added to the wealth which was left by the Huguenot merchant.

Jean's grandson, Peter, had inherited a considerable amount of real estate from his father, and, true to the inherited passion of the race, he, too, became a merchant. It was then just before the Revolutionary war. He had a big hardware store in Hanover Square, New York, then the largest store of its kind in the colony, and when the raid was made at the beginning of hostilities and the statue of the King was melted in Bowling Green his store was attacked for powder and arms.

Peter, the uncle of Ogden Goelet, was one of the sons. He it was who put the capstone on the fortune of the family. He, as the oldest son of the old merchant, inherited the larger share of the fortune. He soon saw that trade no longer offered the greatest opportunities for the accumulation of wealth. He saw that New York was certain to become one of the greatest cities, if not the greatest city, in the world.

The real estate in the lower part of the city, which had been left to him, where it was off the thoroughfare of traffic, he traded or sold. His desire was for holdings in Broadway, which already indicated its future. He loaned money on property in the district, then away out of town, but now immediately about Fortieth and Fiftieth streets. He encouraged builders to come to him for loans, and then when there was a failure on their part to meet their indebtedness he would secure the property by virtue of his liens on it.

The so-called Goelet farm did not consist of unbroken property. It was chiefly located in the parts of the city already mentioned. At that time Mr.
Goelet owned most of the land on which the Grand Central Station and its approaches lie. Commodore Vanderbilt approached the shrewd speculator and made him an offer for it. Mr.
Goelet laughed at the offer.

"Very well," Commodore Vanderbilt is quoted as saying, "that property pleases me very much and I intend to have control of it."

Again Mr. Goelet laughed, but the railway king went to the Legislature and succeeded in having an act passed condemning the property for railway purposes. Mr. Goelet never completely forgave Commodore Vanderbilt for this, though the real estate magnate always referred to the railway king with profound respect as the only man who had ever gotten the best of Peter Goelet.

Finer Than the Ferris Wheel.

Vienna's gigantic wheel has been erected by British workmen in charge of a London engineer at a cost of $300,- 000. It is more elegantly fitted up than the Ferris wheel, and contains thirty compartments, with room for 600 passengers, who are carried to a height of 840 feet, giving a bird's-eye view of Vienna and stretches of the Danube. The wheel is driven by an electric motor with a smooth and agreeable motion.

Diplomatic Old Hats.

As Lord Roberts, "Robs," was leaving one of the public dinners given to the officers of the colonial troops, old Subadar Singh, an Indian officer, came forward and offered the general his sword. This is an Oriental token of much favor. This saying, "I do not want your sword; give me your hand. We are comrades."

To Ward Off Lions.

In a recent lecture the German traveler, Prof. Fechnel-Loeschke declared that the danger from attacks by wild animals in the African deserts and somewhere was greatly exaggerated, and that the best weapon against attack was an umbrella, which would ward off any lion or tiger.

THE HERALD.

TUESDAY, JAN. 31, 1899.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Mable A. Stover.
The death of Mrs. Mable A. Stover, widow of the late Edward A. Stover, on Monday, removes an aged and highly respected citizen. She had reached the ripe old age of seventy-four years.

Elisha Ferguson

Elisha Ferguson, at one time city marshal of this city, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. O. Trefether, in Eliot yesterday at the ripe, old age of 80 years. He was city marshal here nearly a half century ago, and was well liked. He leaves one daughter, with whom he resided.

"BRICK" IS PARTICULAR.

"Brick" Cloheey, who has dodged more base balls and stood unflinchingly before more high balls than any man in the county, is getting particular in his old age. Once upon a time "Brick" would curl up on an old canvas in the rear of a fakir's tent at the county fairs and sleep like a healthy babe until morning but there has been a change in "Brick" since African dodgers barred their heads to the horsehide and no longer wear a tall hat stuffed with baked clay. He can no longer work at his profession and is getting fussy. The best of hotels is none too good for him and a Russian Count would not need more waiting on. He has been placed on record as disappearing the cuisine at Hotel de Entwistle and hereafter will recommend Hotel de Pender to his friends.

CLUB NOTES.

Parker is picked as a sure winner in the P. A. C. pool tournament. Ex-President Mudgett of the Cycle club sent a telegram of congratulation to the boys over the success of their minstrel show and dance.

In the pool tournament at the P. A. C. rooms on Monday evening, Parker defeated Kirkpatrick 100 to 69; Burke defeated Conner 100 to 78.

Manager Hantress of the Cycle club minstrel show is negotiating with Mr. J. Z. Kelley, the famous tenor of Lynn, to sing at the reproduction next Friday evening.

WHOLESOME DREAD.

The Milford whist club, which has always had the reputation of maintaining the strongest team in the state, is thought has a wholesome dread of the Warwick club of Portsmouth, since it refused to play the game at Portsmouth, on account of the illness of one of its players. If this counts as a forfeited game it will make five straight for Portsmouth and the Warwicks will have to win only seven more games to hold the Calumet cup.—Manchester Mirror.

Don't fail to see the grand reproduction of the P. C. C. Minstrel Overture next Friday evening.

ENTERTAINMENT AT FARRAGUT SCHOOL.

Superintendent of Schools J. C. Simpson gave an interesting talk to the parents of the children attending the Kindergarten at the Farragut school on Monday evening. The popular teachers, the Misses Brewster and Andrews, were delighted with the attendance and the evening was most enjoyable.

ELECTRIC ROAD HEARINGS FINISHED.

Board of Aldermen Grant Relocation of Tracks on Vaughan Street.

The continuation of the hearing of the petitioners of the Portsmouth and Dover railroad for a relocation of tracks on Vaughan street, was held in the city rooms on Monday evening before the board of aldermen. The full board was present except Aldermen Hallam and Brackett, with ex-Mayor William O. Jenkins in the chair.

The petition having already been granted the meeting was merely for the purpose of awarding any damages caused by the change in the tracks.

The clerk read a document prepared by Judge Page, attorney for the railroad, covering the work previously granted by the board and ending in the following: And no special damage by the change in the aforesaid tracks being caused to any abutter or other person, we have assessed no damage to any abutter or other person.

On motion of Ald. Yeaton the resolution was accepted by a unanimous vote and duly signed by every member of the board present.

Chairman Jenkins then ordered a recess until 8.30 o'clock, the time set for the hearing of the same petitioners for a location of tracks on South road.

At that time, the clerk read the order calling the hearing and also the location of all tracks, side tracks, spurs, etc., and all poles.

A recess of five minutes was then called, after which Ald. Yeaton moved the petition as read by the clerk be granted on the exception that all poles on Lafayette road be of iron, also some half dozen on South road, the road to be constructed of the same material as that granted in the first petition and under the direction of the committee on streets.

The motion then prevailed by a unanimous vote, and the meeting adjourned. Previous to adjournment a vote of thanks was extended to William O. Jenkins who so kindly presided at the different hearings.

PARKS STILL SURLY

Will Not be Arraigned Until After Adjournment of Supreme Court

ALFRED ME, Jan. 31.—Frank Parks, the murderer of aged Elvira Tarlton, is still the same surly, uncommunicative prisoner as on the first day of his commitment. He has nothing to say to either keeper or fellow prisoners. Parks has been allowed to fully read the newspaper accounts of the affair and he has expressed the wish that he be not carried back to Kittery, and appears to prefer his cell in the jail to a visit to the town where he is now so thoroughly hated by the people.

Parks will not be arraigned at Alfred until after the adjournment of court in Saco, as County Attorney Matthews is busy on criminal cases here. There is said to be a probability that Parks will plead guilty.

POLICE COURT

Thomas Morrissey who was yesterday arraigned for keeping spirituous liquors for sale and was bound over in $200 bonds was again tried this morning for selling spirituous liquor. He pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and costs taxed at $9.04 which he paid. Messrs Thomas Leary and John Phelan went his bonds on the first charge.

William Powell and James Cloheey, who were arrested last evening while attempting to rob the store of the Globe Grocery company were arraigned upon the charge of breaking and entering. They both pleaded not guilty. Cloheey said that he was sick and asked for a continuance in order to secure counsel. He also criticized the service at City hotel and asked to be removed to the jail where they answered bells more promptly. Both men were held in the sum of $200 each for appearance Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

SOMETHING COMING

Special to the Herald
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 30.—Congressman Sulloway was at the Navy department today and for an hour gave a curtain lecture to the officials about the lack of work at the Portsmouth yard, contending that Norfolk was overwhelmed with patronage given to a Democratic state, while Republican New Hampshire was deserted. A promise was made which the Congressman says is not for publication for Boston to get hold of and head off.

COURT TO RE-CONVENE

The adjourned session of the January term of court will re-convene in Exeter Monday, March 20, at 11 a. m., at which time the docket will be called and all cases for trial by jury or court at the April term will be remarked. A jury list and a court list will then be issued for the use of counsel. The court will afterwards hear any cases that are then ready for trial.

Both men were arraigned before Judge Emery at three o'clock on the charge of keeping spirituous liquors for sale. Gray pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $50 and costs taxed at $8.27. Morrissey pleaded not guilty, but on the evidence submitted by the marshal and assistant marshal the court adjudged him guilty and bound him over to the April term of the supreme court under $300 bonds. Later in the afternoon he wanted to change his plea to guilty, but the court having accepted his first plea Judge Emery refused to open the case again.
